SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Lady's Throat Cut While On A Sick Bed.

Enraged Husband Shoots Dead The Fleeing Negro Fiend—Robbery The Motive.

Guthrie, Ky., Feb. 10.—Early this morning George Rawlings a farmer living near St. Bethlehem, Tenn., arose and went to the barn to feed, leaving his wife sick in bed, and the cook, a negro man named Jim Gordon, in the kitchen preparing breakfast. As soon as he thought all were at the barn, the negro went in to Mrs. Rawlings' room and ask her for the money Mr. Rawlings had put away. She at once began to call for her husband and a lady who was in the house. But when she screamed and before help came, he sprang upon her and cut her throat, killing her instantly. The screams of the two ladies, however, called Mr. Rawlings to the scene, while the negro ran back into the kitchen trying to escape. Before he could get out of the house the enraged husband shot him three times and then beat his head into a jelly with the butt of the gun. The people all over the county are wild with excitement and would have mobbed the negro if the husband had not done the work himself.

The motive of the crime was clearly robbery, as the woman's purse, with about $8 in it, was found on the negro's person. He had taken it from beneath her pillow. About two weeks ago he had come suddenly into her room with an armful of wood, and had seen her counting about $80. She had reported the occurrence to her husband, begging that he bank the money at once. Yesterday he did so. The negro had planned for his crime with great ingenuity, wrapping a heavy red table cover about his right arm, evidently meaning to catch all possible blood stains upon it and burn it up in the stove.

The murdered woman was one of the most beautiful girls ever reared in Montgomery county, a daughter of W. H. Killebrew, one of the leading planters in this section. She was just 20 years old, and had been married only a year last Christmas. The husband, brothers and sisters and aged mother and father of the victim are nearly crazed with grief.

The families of the husband and wife are among the best people in the county, and the husband a well-to-do farmer.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

Effort Will be Made to Have Document Established.

A case rather out of the ordinary is set for a hearing next Friday in the County Court, when a motion will be made to have the will of Mrs. Orra Kelly, deceased, established and probated. Plaintiffs claim that Mrs. Kelly made a will, when of sound mind, and that later, when impaired by ill health, the paper was destroyed. By her will her property was left to her daughters, and if there should be a failure in establishing the will, the estate would go to all of her children, as provided by the statutes.

It is likely that the case will be carried to the highest court for final consideration.

Mr. J. B. Allensworth has been retained by the defense.

Queensberry Is Dead.

London, Feb. 7.—The Marquis of Queensberry is dead, at the age of fifty-five. He succeeded to the title in 1858.

There are two things which made the name of Marquis of Queensberry known the world over. He was the author of the boxing rules under which modern prize fights are conducted and he sent Oscar Wilde to prison.

BAYONET RULE.

Taylor Still Surrounding the State House With Soldiers.

The Military Interfering With the Legislature in Defiance of Gov. Beckham's Order

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 12, 1900.—Taylor has refused to sign the peace agreement. He announced this decision Saturday, and at the same time issued orders for the withdrawal of most of the troops from Frankfort and ordered the legislature back to the Capital.

The rumpers at London, who conceded to him the right to order them about, will obey Taylor's call to meet in Frankfort Monday. The Legislature composed of the Democratic majority, will pay no attention to him, not recognizing in him any authority to adjourn the Legislature from place to place at his pleasure. The Legislature will continue to meet in Louisville until every bayonet has been withdrawn from about the State House.

Sauday Taylor modified his orders for the withdrawal of troops from Frankfort and instead of sending away all but a small guard he has kept six companies, numbering about 300 men. He has also concluded that he could not spare the Gatling guns and had them removed from the car on which they had been loaded for shipment to Louisville, and returned to the places they have occupied for nearly two weeks on the Capitol grounds.

The Republican members are straggling in from London and expect to meet in the State House at noon to-day. They are not decided as to whether they will renew their attempt to compel the attendance of the Democrats.

The Democrats are not moved by threats of compulsion. They constitute a majority of both House and Senate and will continue to hold the legal sessions of the Legislature in Louisville so long as an armed force is maintained at Frankfort to threaten them.

The motion of the Republicans for an injunction to restrain the Contest Board from deciding the contests for minor State offices will be heard by Judge Taft at Cincinnati this afternoon.

The injunction against Taylor to prevent interference with the Legislature will come up before Judge Cantrill at Georgetown tomorrow.

CASE AT GUTHRIE.

The Suspect is an L. & N. Railroad Hand.

There is thought to be a case of smallpox at Guthrie. The physicians of that place think it is smallpox in its incipency. It will probably develop in a day or so. If it proves to be a genuine case, all necessary precautions will be used to prevent its spread. The suspect is a railroad hand.
